Blume is a game where you create a family with one of eight cute and friendly animals. After a few years, a strange man will visit your house and knock on the door, but for reasons that you will learn, your family must pack up and leave. Blume has been made by way of the player’s activity, and plays with the metaphor of “cucus” - a phrase for “draw”. You create a cute scene for the people who will see your family, and that scene will change according to the activity you do with the game.Cooking with an ex-porn star: Bear Grylls braves blizzard to rescue model Bear Grylls A BLIZZARD on the Scottish highlands has stopped an experienced outdoorsman in his tracks, forcing him to abandon his cold-weather survival training for a rescue mission. The star of ITV’s Man vs Wild, Bear Grylls, had to be rescued by a member of the public in a blizzard that saw high winds and heavy snowfall. The TV presenter had been camping out on the moors of Sutherland in the north-east of Scotland with a former pornographic actress, Coronation Street’s Jessica Arnold. The pair set up their yurt – a dome-shaped structure – to go back to back in the cold when they discovered the actor’s tent had blown away. “I can see the tent in the distance, but my legs are like lead and I can’t move,” Mr Grylls told ABC News. “I’m in a bit of a battle. If I go any slower my legs will fall off.” It was then the weather worsened, with winds reaching almost 50mph and snowfall of up to 50cm falling on the highlands.
