ATFs have been reported to bind specifically to L-box or E-box regulatory elements present in the promoter region of genes under the control of ATFs, causing transcriptional activation or repression (Montgomery et al. [@CR35]; Staal et al. [@CR54]; Aleyes et al. [@CR2]). Although L-box or E-box sequences were not present in the promoters of the genes up-regulated by CBD and CBD-H$\sim$2$\sim$O$\sim$2$\sim$, this does not exclude the possibility that CBD and CBD-H$\sim$2$\sim$O$\sim$2$\sim$ may regulate the expression of those genes through other mechanisms. Thus, our results did not elucidate which gene expression alterations mediated the anti-proliferative effects of CBD-H~2~O~2~ on cancer cells. The present results demonstrated that CBD-H~2~O~2~ inhibited the proliferation of oral cancer cells through caspase-dependent apoptosis. CBD-H~2~O~2~ induced the activation of caspase-3 and PARP in CAL 27 cells, which resulted in cleavage of caspase-3 and PARP into the respective cleaved fragments. We further investigated whether the Bcl-2 family and its upstream regulator Bax were involved in CBD-H~2~O~2~-mediated apoptosis. CBD-H~2~O~2~ decreased the expression of Bcl-2 and increased the expression of Bax in CAL 27 cells. A previous study indicated that activation of Bax can trigger the oligomerization and subsequent conformational changes in the Bcl-2 family that drive the release of the
