By the way, If you're interested in our website, function and forum, you can send me a PM on youtube.com/elonemcsholday How To Fix KasperskyKTSKISKAV2019v19001088TrialResetterfreedownload a problem with the hosting server. This is expected since the hosting server has not yet opened the support, and I couldn't send you a message. I can send you a PM there to show you a way. Q: Help me identify these cookies and why we have a ton of them? I recently switched our web-server/hosting to Amazon and it has been a bit of a challenge to get everything going. I've been reading through their documentation and am now having trouble understanding some of their terminology. I cannot seem to figure out what these cookies are: `__flvsmip31_sc_sess_132203066941847` `__gcl_aud-v3-d0d5b318b4c_6296-1454759948716` `__flashpwd` I'm guessing they are related to Flash? Is there any way to view these cookies or clear them? A: `__flashpwd` is Flash/ASP.NET/NoScript's signing cookie. It is used to ensure that the user is logged in, and you may need to clear it manually, it is only generated when you open a NoScript page, and if the page is changed, then the cookie is regenerated. `__flvsmip31_sc_sess_132203066941847` is a flash container cookie used to identify the Flash object in the page. It is probably generated by Adobe. If you have NoScript, it needs to be cleared manually. `__gcl_aud-v3-d0d5b318b4c_6296-1454759948716` is a Google cookies. For more information, I recommend you read the Wiki entry of NoScript. Q: how to split web.config into separate files? I am building a web application, I am using c#.net 3.5 and the visual web developer 2010 express. In my web.config file, I have defined a folder as a role, I want to create a separate web.config file and include it in
