email address
segmentation email
segmentation can be used to create groups of targeted email
addresses based on previous interactions.
for instance, you can create a group of addresses that are all
from people who bought a product in the last three months. you can also create different groups based on the

opened your emails, including people who never opened one email from you. that's a lot of people! business list segmentation. in the same way that segmentation allows you to create groups of targeted emails based on previous interactions, business list segmentation allows you to create groups of targeted companies based on their previous interactions with your business. we're happy to announce a few changes to the structure of our email lists. we are no longer using the category names for the list structure. we decided to do this because people often shared their categories with other groups of people, and because we like to use the best data that we can get. an email address is one of the most valuable assets a business has. email is not just used to share important content and announcements, it is the most important way to communicate with a prospective customer. be sure to capture your leads by using veribee to clean out your email list. your email list should always be clean of expired and junk emails. you can use veribee to check the status of your email list.
