You should not take all the information presented on this page as an endorsement of the programs listed below, you should only take such a decision after you have carefully evaluated all the data presented. The "Piracy Notifications" option has been implemented in the Windows 7 client, which means that this software solution is now capable of helping you keep your computer safe even when you are not at home. Moreover, as the name suggests, the Pirate Notifications software is meant to raise an alarm whenever an unauthorized copy of your files is detected. When you are carrying out your search for a tool that can help you monitor and ensure the protection of your files, be sure to check out the "Piracy Notifications" option. As for the features and benefits offered by this particular software solution, the following list should give you a more or less comprehensive overview of the subject. Helps you monitor the activities on your computer The Pirate Notifications software will effectively block all the potential security threats that could harm your computer even when you are not present. To prevent this from happening, the software will notify you whenever a questionable event is discovered on your computer. You can choose to either view the notification or dismiss it straight away. Keeps you in the loop when your system is compromised If you think you have been the target of an online attack, the "Piracy Notifications" application will let you know about it as soon as you launch the software. Use the program to find out about all the incidents that could harm your computer Once you have identified a suspicious process, you can also take the time to examine what sort of data is being handled by the program. Moreover, it is easy to determine the nature of the process, as the option is presented as a single window that contains all the processes installed on your computer. Lets you manage processes on your computer As mentioned, you can stop processes of all kinds, even when you are not present. You can also turn a process on and off, which means you can shut down what you consider to be the running applications of a questionable nature. In addition, you can also allow the program to launch processes on a regular basis, or you can change how often the alarm will be raised. This option is also available for those processes that have been blocked. Works in stealth mode You can set the Pirate Notifications application to launch automatically whenever your PC starts, or whenever you log in to a Windows session. In

From the makers of EFS comes a file-encryption utility that can secure large numbers of files in just a few clicks. The one-window interface makes it as simple as it gets. Encrypted files can also be converted to zip archives, which makes for a tidy archive file. In addition to that, you can also secure files with a password, and a "zip and protect" method is also available. Automatic file encryption With SoftProtect, you don't need to lift a finger to secure data, as it will take care of encryption automatically. You simply select a directory, or a group of files and folders, and hit the encrypt button. As soon as that's done, the encryption process will start. Your files will be safely secured, and you will be able to recover them in no time. Moreover, file contents are encrypted and data is encoded at once. You don't have to worry about bits of data being left unsecured after you turn off the program. In addition to that, once the files are encrypted, you can carry out different operations on them. Slayerz is a free lightweight file encryption software, it protects files with a strong encryption algorithm, like AES 256, Rijndael, RC4. Also you can password protect and even convert into zip format. This software also supported a batch mode, which will encrypt many files with one time, so easy to use. With this software, you can securely protect all files. You can also encrypt files in your computer drive, network drive and even network folder. In this encryption software, you can: - easily encrypt files and folders - easily protect with password - easily convert files into zip format - easily protect many files at one time - conveniently select a password for protection - easily share your secure file with others - create encryption files in a few clicks.
